There are certainly few people who understand microkernels as well as Benno

June - you and the fabulous folks at the Foundation are crushing it. Impressive what you can get done when you have to work from home!!

June, I was trying to see where the list of the endorsed solution providers was on the Foundation page, but could not find it - is it there somewhere? Would be great to be able to point people who are on the fence about the use of seL4 that this now exists.

Thanks! This does not seem to be linked to from the main Foundation page ("for details, please see" list) - and I initially missed that it is included on the drop-down menu on the top of the page.
